Final Transcripts

At the end of May each senior will be given a Final Transcript form. At that time students will need to indicate where they want their final transcript sent.

Grading Policy Reminder

Credits are awarded on a semester-by-semester basis. Students earn ½ credit per semester.

- If a student fails the first semester of a full year course and passes the second semester, the two semester grades will be averaged to determine whether the student has earned a passing grade for the year.

Example: Semester 1: 68 Semester 2: 98 Average: 83
Student will earn a full credit for the course

- If a student passes the first semester of a full year course, but fails the second semester, the second semester grade will NOT be averaged, and the student must repeat the second semester of the course.

Example: Semester 1: 98 Semester 2: 68
In the above grading scenario, a student would NOT receive a full year credit. This could adversely affect a student's graduation.

Decisions, Decisions, Decisions

I'm admitted to the school of my choice! What do I do now?

Congratulations! (1.) Send in your deposit to reserve your place. (2.) Apply for housing if you haven't already done so. (3.) Notify the other colleges that accepted you of your decision to attend another school. (4.) Open and pay attention to all mailings and/or calls from the college of your choice to avoid missing deadlines. (5.) Plan to attend orientation sessions. (6.) Finish your senior year strongly and pat yourself on the back for all of your hard work.

I'm accepted at two colleges and can't decide which offer to accept! What do I do?

Hopefully, you have had time to visit both schools again. If you haven't had that opportunity, review your notes from the first visit. What attracted you to each school? What kind of financial aid or scholarships are they willing to offer? You may want to make a chart of pros and cons so you can see, in writing, the comparisons. Just remember, if the decision is tremendously difficult then most likely you will be a happy student whichever you choose.

My top choice college has denied admission to me! What do I do now?

Hopefully, you planned wisely and applied to other colleges that you would be happy to attend. Review your options. If the only acceptance you have is your "safety" school, decide if you could be happy with that option. If not, talk to your counselor asap and see what other options may still be available. Above all, remember that the college process has become more and more competitive and you can't take the denial as a personal insult. Make the best of your remaining choices.

I've been waitlisted at my first choice college! What do I do now?

If you would still like to attend that college, inform them that you want to remain on the waitlist and that you will enroll if admitted in May or June. Send the college any updates, current grades, and any information on any new achievements or awards you have received since you first applied. Make a deposit by May 1 at your next choice college, but be aware there are a limited number of waitlisted students who are taken each year. Be prepared to forfeit most or all of the deposit at the second choice college if you are admitted to your first choice school and decide to enroll.

The financial aid offer from my first choice school is too small! Now what?

If the decision, as to which college to attend, hinges on the financial aid packages offered by each school, consider all options and look at the big picture. You'll need to sit down with your family and assess your financial options, carefully taking into account all general expenses (including tuition, room/board, books, supplies, fees, personal monetary needs, and transportation). Consider all merit scholarships offered to you, whether or not they are renewable or spread out over a number of semesters or years, all grants offered, work study programs available on campus, and loan options. If you are awarded financial aid, be sure to be aware of what guidelines you must maintain in order to keep your award (i.e. GPA, work status, etc.) Consider if you will have time for a part-time job or if summer employment can help with your expenses.

I still want to apply for college, but I haven't done it yet. Is it too late?

Actually it is not too late. There are some colleges that have late spring and even summer deadlines or open admissions. You do, however, need to get the process started as soon as possible!
